“ Thank You Roy Sr for all that you done for my son , You were as good as gold, You had one of the kindest Hearts of anyone I have ever met. You were a Father figure to so many young folks. You saved a lot of people, and done your very best . I am sure you earned more than one set of Angel Wings , But I also know you will be sharing cause thats the kind of person you were. I may not have talked to you that often , but I always kept ck on you.. Thanks for raising Austin for as long as you could Love to you Roy you will truly be missed. Rest In Pease. “ My fondest memory of Roy Sr. who i called "pops" cause he was a father figure is when he would ask me to go to 7-11 for him to get vanilla ice cream, grape soda, and wafers. I loved the way the man never judged nobody and all the great advice he gave. I WILL TRULY MISS YOU POPS.

“ Rest in peace. You are with your father in heaven that's for sure. You knew The Lord and I remember that from you as a lil girl. I remember my mother fighting for his rights in the family at Thanksgiving. Dance in the fields of grace.

“ like many of my childhood years he sat quietly at the back pew adjacent to the entrance door of the sanctuary. He was always had a "hallelujah" praise and head nod with a "thats right" "God is soo good". It was those very same words from same familiar voice that brought me comfort one sunday in 2009. Though the faces of the congregation had changed and many of the saints had joined the might cloud of witness it those words that made me feel like I was home! He was my fathers best friend so I know they are rejoicing together. His smile, his sincere praise, that baseball cap and afro, his yankee tee will always be imprinted in my mind. He was truly a great man and I he will be greatly missed.

“ When I was 22 years old I moved into the apartment he worked at and he was always there to help me with anything I needed .Roy was always around with a smile on his face. We were neighbors for 12 years. I watched him be a loving father and grandfather. Heaven now has a new angel!
